Rare Picture of Civil War Scene in San Antonio

Don't get excited, folks. It's all over now, and long ago, too, but the picture is so unusual it's worth a minute of your time. The sketch was made by a government draftsman who was present when the Federal forces in Texas surrendered to Confederate commissioners on the Main Plaza in San Antonio, February 18, 1861. From the picture, we gather it was a gala occasion, especially for the Confederate Texans.

Manse Jolly, Once Terror of Yankees In South Carolina, Buried In Little River Cemetery; Was Drowned in Walkers Creek

The body of "Manse" Jolly, as wild and romantic, daring figure as ever lived through the stirring days of the Civil War, lies buried in Little River Cemetery in Milam County.

A native of South Carolina, he enlisted in the Confederate army with six brothers. Five of them were left dead on the field of battle while "Manse" Jolly kept his promise to kill five Yankees for each brother lost. He came to Texas and Milam county.

He was a second cousin to Robert Todd, pioneer and former county treasurer and sheriff of this county. Jolly was a first cousin of Mr. Todd's mother, who before her marriage was Sarah Sherrill. Jolly made a crop on the old Sampson place near Cameron shortly after the war. He was drowned in Walker's Creek at Magee's crossing located near the present Walker's Creek cemetery, in 1868 or 1969. In the published account of his life taken from the Anderson Daily Tribune of Anderson, South Carolina, the writer says he was drowned in Red River crossing into Texas. Mr. Todd corrects this statement and with proof that the body now lies in Little River cemetery. Old timers will read this account with interest. Next week another account will appear:

John L. Jolly, now resident of McCormick, was a visitor to the city a few days ago. Mr. Jolly is well known as the chicken fancier and for 50 odd years lived at Jolly Springs, six miles northwest of the city. He moved to McCormick about two years ago. He is well pleased with his new home. McCormick is a new country and will soon erect county buildings and begin business. Mr. Jolly says there is little lawlessness there and there will be little work for a sheriff.

Mr. Jolly was asked something about the history of his uncle, the famous Manse Jolly, and he reluctantly gave us a few facts as to this brave man's deeds during the close of the war. Manse Jolly was one of the first from Anderson county to join the Confederate Army, enlisting at Charleston. He served until the close, coming out without a scratch but a record for bravery that few soldiers equaled.

Manse Jolly was accompanied to the front with six brothers. Five were left on different battle fields. Only one accompanied him back to the old home where an old mother

During the auction, however, Dave becomes inspired by a "horseless carriage seen tearing down the rutted country road at neck-breakin' speed of 20 miles per hour." He sees a great future in automobiles and wants Jed Travers, local livery owner, to go into busness with him. Jed withholds his decision until Dave proves what his "carriage" can do in a cross-country race with a horse.

How Cardui Helps Women

"Mal-nutrition" means that your body is not getting enough to keep it up, so that what it has to do is not done well. You may not be eating enough to keep up the work of the body, or there may be something wrong that keeps you from getting full value from the food you eat.

Because of mal-nutrition, some women have aches and pains every month. Such pains should not be neglected.

Take Cardui to give you a better appetite, to give you more strength from the food you eat—to build up and increase your feeling of well-being. Aches and pains go away as you build up with the help of Cardui.

POISON FORMULA GIVEN BY COUNTY AGENT

Formulas for poisoning rodents, rabbits, birds and pocket gophers to protect field and garden crops and orchards have been prepared by County Agent George Banzhaf and the Cameron Enterprise prints these items with pleasure believing this to be timely and beneficial to farm friends:

Poison Wash to Protect Fruit Trees From Rabbit Damage

Dissolve one ounce of alkeloid strychnine in 3 quarts of water. Make a paste of one-half pound of gloss laundry starch and a little cold water. Add this starch paste to poison water and cook until starch is done. On removing from stove add 6 ounces of glycerin. When the above mixture has cooled take a brush and paint the trunk of the trees. In cases of bad weather with lots of rain this poison wash will have to be renewed on trees every four to six weeks. Rabbit damage is seasonal and does not exist over extended periods of time. Often one coat is sufficient to check rabbits until they again begin to feed on green stuff.

Formula for the Use of Alkeloid Strychnine for Poisoning Rodents

Dry Grain Baits—Dissolve 1 ounce alkeloid strychnine and 1-10 ounce of powdered saccharin in one pint of boiling water. Add one tablespoon of gloss laundry starch which has previously been dissolved in a little cold water to the above, and cook the starch mixture thus formed. Mix together 1 oz. soda and one-fourth pint of Karo syrup (Blue Label) and stir into starch when it is almost ready to remove from stove. This will cause an effervesence which necessitates the use of large size container 4-6 quart to begin with. Pour this solution over clean grain and stir to insure even distribution. Dry.

For Sparrows—20 quarts of clean grain maize, wheat.

For Field Mice—30 quarts of clean grain maize, wheat.

For Crow—20 quarts of corn.

Rolled Oat or Bran Baits

Mix one part syrup and two parts water and pour over the desired quantity of rolled oats. Use only enough to barely dampen the oats. Place the proper amount of alkeloid strychnine and saccharin in a salt shaker and sift over the rolled oats. Use while freshly made-up.

Pocket Mice and Rabbits—1 ounce strychnine 1-10 ounces saccharin, 20 quarts oats.

Pocket Gophers

Cut sweet potatoes into pieces measuring one-half by one-half 2 inches long, using one ounce strychnine over 16 quarts of bait.

Note: Strychnine and saccharin always mixed in rate of 10 to 1.

Rodent Control Is Resumed In County

The rodent extermination campaign, under the auspices of the U. S. Biological Survey, has been revised by the CWA, though the number of workers has been cut half.

Jeff Cammer is foreman of the Cameron force and Wm. Gea is foreman of Rockdale.

We are authorized to say that if you are bothered with rats to get in touch with your local foreman, and if the number of traps and the amount of poison holds out, they will be to see you. They are trapping in the business district this week.

TEXAS

During a single century, beginning with a handful of American colonists led by Stephen F. Austin, Texas has grown to a State with nearly six million people . . . fifth in population ranking among all the States.

The Austin colonists were adventurous toilers. They worked to extend American civilization. They were pioneers, sowing the seed for a race of workers. Their inbred love for achievement laid the foundation for the Texas of today, which is truly a monument to tremendous accomplishment.

The heroism of the pioneers has colored each year of this century of Texas history. Each generation has produced its quota of big-minded Texans whose vision and courage have led the people on to pioneer in the development of new resources . . . constantly seeking new and better ways of earning, living and serving.

Texas is the leader of the Southwestern empire . . . the heart of the Southwestern market with its more than twelve million people having more than six billion dollars of annual buying power. Texas has forged into, and holds, this position by dent of the unstinting devotion of Texans.

More than twenty-one years ago the Texas Power & Light Company brought transmission line electric power to aid in the development of the natural resources of Texas. The use of transmission line electric service has increased the efficiency of the builders of Texas commerce and industry a thousand-fold. The limits of Texas opportunities have been extended. Dormant resources previously beyond the reach of man's hands have been harnessed by the use of this electric power and now serve as sources of new wealth. This company still operates with the spirit, vigor and courage of Texas pioneers, recognizing no toil as too great so long as it is exerted for the expansion of opportunities for Texas.

NEW AIR COOLED GAS REFRIGERATOR HERE

Gas refrigeration, newest and most outstanding recent development in gas burning appliances, has materially altered the trend in automatic refrigeration sales in the past few months, according to Joe Furneaux, local manager, who announced the beginning of the 1934 air-cooled Electrolux sales campaign today. Electrolux shipments to Texas in January were 3,000 per cent greater than for the same period last year, and February shipments were 30 per cent greater than January, he said.

Popularity of the gas refrigerator has spread rapidly since the new air-cooled type came on the market last spring and Mr. Furneaux expects 1934 sales to outstrip 1933 because of the many desirable features found only in this new gas refrigeration. A tiny gas flame replaces and does the work of approximately 200 to 300 pounds of moving machinery necessary on other types of automatic refrigeration, eliminating wear and consequent repairs and replacements. It functions silently, and there is no vibration, no irksome oiling of parts and no radio interference, Mr. Furneaux pointed out. Operating cost, he said, is less than three cents a day. New 1934 features include interior lighting, rubber cube grids, and vegetable freshner.

The simplicity of operation which produces constant, steady cold is amazing to the layman and fascinating to technicians. Vaporized by the tiny gas flame, the refrigerating fluid absorbs and removes the heat from inside the refrigerator. This leaves the interior devoid of heat and brings the temperature below fifty degrees where it remains constantly.

to your telephone service

The men and women who furnish your telephone service here could not do their job so well without the help of American Telephone and Telegraph Company, parent organization of the Bell System.

IF a better way of doing a job gives better telephone service on the Pacific Coast, it may work equally well in the cities and towns of this state.

Staff experts of American Telephone and Telegraph Company, parent company of the Bell System, search constantly for these economies and improvements . . . test them . . . study them. The perfected result is offered to aid the 24 Bell operating companies . . . of which the Southwestern Company is one . . . give a nation-wide telephone service, uniformly good, at a fair price.

This is a fundamental policy of the Bell System. It is based upon the belief that what is best for the telephone user is in the end the policy that will bring us the surer, more enduring measure of success.

QUICKER, BETTER RELIEF from use of Black-Draught

"I have taken Black-Draught, off and on when needed, for twenty-five years, for it is easy to take," writes Mr. George T. Wharton, of Petersburg, Va. "I take it for constipation and when I have that dull, tired feeling. I take it for colds and other complaints where a good laxative is needed, and I believe it gives me quicker and better relief than any other medicine I know. It certainly has been a help to me."

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from unwise dosing with harsh cathartics may cause bowel strain, and even set-up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be safely relieved in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. R. A.

In Our Show Window Appears This Symbol

This symbol ℞ appears on every prescription that your Doctor writes and has remained a custom from the ancient days to the present time. The heading ℞ appearing on your prescriptions is an abbreviation of the word recipe (Take)—the imperative of the Latin verb recipio.

The use of the inclined stroke upon the tail of the ℞ is traced to a custom common in the ancient days of superstition of placing at the top of the prescription an abbreviation, called an "invocation" which represented a prayer to a favorite Deity.

We display the symbol ℞ with this explanation, for it symbolizes our drug store as a Prescription Pharmacy.

For 43 years the prescription department has been the corner stone of this business, during which time we have maintained the standard—the quality at all times has been the best obtainable—the number of prescriptions compounded runs into hundreds of thousands, and none other than capable Registered Pharmacists have been here to serve you.

In time of sickness and distress you need the services of the Pharmacist. Your State (for your protection) now requires that he be a Graduate of Pharmacy and in addition thereto pass the Texas State Board of Pharmacy before becoming eligible to compound your prescriptions.

Use this drug store if you appreciate this kind of service.

Trench Silo Pays for Itself With Milk

This is a farm chore that hundreds of Texas farmers are performing this early spring with the greatest satisfaction, because the increase of milk-flow of ensilage-fed dairy cattle repays many times the labor of digging and filling a trench silo. This inexpensive method of preserving ensilage, popularized by county agents, has made silos practicable in every part of Texas. Less than three years ago there were only 25 trench silos in Texas. Now there are more than 2,000.

Preaching services were well attended at the Baptist church last Saturday, Sunday and Sunday night. Bro. Simmons was unable to bring his family this time, owing to the illness of his little daughter, Ruby Alice. Her condition is improving.

A B. Y. P. U. enlistment committee was appointed Sunday by Brother Simmons for the purpose of trying to organize an adult B. Y. P. U. Union, also to see about having a B. Y. P. U. Study Course taught at Burlington church. The committee, with the pastor, will meet again soon and discuss the subjects. The study courses have been postponed until June, when the pastor will have finished his school and can assist. The prospective pupils for the adult B. Y P. U. U. will begin a mission study Sunday night, using the book "How to Pray."

The time for the revival has been set for Friday night before the first Sunday in July. The church has left it up to the pastor to appoint a committee to help him select some preacher to assist in the revival. It will be announced later who will assist in the revival.

Manse Jolly

awaited them with open arms, the father having died shortly before the war. On his arrival home, Manse was greeted by the Yankee garrison, then stationed in Anderson. This angered him and he took an oath to kill five Yankees for every brother lost on the battle fields. He more than made good.

He lost no time in beginning his hide and seek game with the garrison stationed here. The commander soon learned that one of his men had been killed by Jolly. In a day or two another was reported killed by Jolly. Then squads were sent out to search for the desperado. They often encountered the daring Jolly and as often lost one or two of their number, for when Jolly's rifle spoke, death claimed another victim. Finally more soldiers were sent here to help hunt down Jolly and times got so warm he left for Texas and was crossing Red River in the Lone Star State, when his swimming horse became entangled in some vines as he was crossing the swolen stream and both rider and horse perished.

When Jolly left Anderson, he had 23 notches on his gun, and it was said that he killed at least a dozen Yankees on his way to Texas. He more than made good five times five. This number of slain Yankees did not include the Negroes he killed. A large number were killed in different sections of the county. He wore the uniform of a federal soldier and this helped him at different times. Among the negroes killed was one near Pendleton he met in the road. The negro seeing the Yankee uniform offered to direct Jolly to the home of some white people, where he was told he could secure jewelry and gold. Here Jolly put another notch on his gun.

At Brown's Ferry three Yankee garrison soldiers were stationed to guard some stolen cotton. Jolly went down and killed all three and turned the lotton over to the parties who had lost it. At Boleman's blacksmith shop, located near Providence church, in Rock Mills township, Jolly found two Yankees who had stolen horses from some of his relatives. He disarmed both and marched them ten miles to Sour Woods Springs school house where a singing was then in progress. Here he called out S. F. McConnell, father of Sam and Bod McConnell, of this city. After a short conversation he left Mr. McConnell and went on to his mother's home, located near where Dr. Hutchinson now lives. Taking his two prisoners into the woods, he killed them, then turned the stolen horses over to those who had lost them.

There is no way to determine how many Yankees and negroes Jolly did make away with but it would be safe to guess that he doubled the number he set out to kill.

"Jones Company" was composed of a band of young lads, too young to go to the front, but they patrolled the country at night and did some pretty hot work, and after the surrender they still kept active.

Manse Jolly rode with them on many a raid. Their very name became a terror to the unruly blacks and to the maruding squads of Yankees sent out from headquarters at Anderson court house ostensibly to forage for provisions and supplies, but also to rob and pillage.

Rev. Dr. John B. Adger in his book "My Life and Times" tells something of Jones Company, and the Yankee thieves When old Mrs. North's carriage horses were taken from the harness and the old lady left sitting in the coach in the road, Manse Jolly and Mike Dickson and one of the Simpson boys went after the Yanks and got 'em but "lost them" over on the road by Sandy Springs—then a wooded country.

These same Yanks took the watches and jewelry from the refugees at Boscobel, near Pendleton, where Dr. Adger then lived and Clint Summers now lives. The leader of the Yankees Alanson Chapman, had stolen a fine young mare and in mounting her his short carbine swung around—the hammer hit the pommel of his saddle as the muzzle jabbed him under the chin and he fell dead in the yard. Most of the jewelry, including the handsome, old fashioned watch, we now wear was recovered.

The search for Manse Jolly and Jones and Young Simpson and the rest of the Jones Company brought an officer and a squad to Boscobel on another occasion. Young John Adger, killed in a run away accident years ago, was a member of the famous Jones Company and rode a sorrel pony called "Doc." The officer came into the house and asked the boy, John, if any of the Jones' gang were hiding around there. The officer never suspected the mere lad of beng one of the dreaded band.

A banquet was given by the commandant of the Yankee forces in Anderson and Manse Jolly and young Simpson are said to have attended it and applied to the officers for the $1000 reward in gold offered for Jolly and Simpson respectively. Some suspicion being aroused, Governor Orr loudly laughed and said the boys were playing a part. He then quietly got word to the young rascals that if they didn't quit foolin' and get out of danger he'd give 'em a lickin' himself. It was on this occasion that Governor Orr told the Yankee officers that while they had taken everything else we had they couldn't take all the good dinners we'd eaten befo' de wah.

Jones Company fell in on one occasion with a whole troop of Yankee cavalry on the lookout for them. It was beyond the Seneca River. The Yanks never suspected that the motly crowd of boys mounted on old mules and plow horses was the redoubtable Jones' Company. They turned them around, and started them for headquarters. The boys had told them they were going on a hunting trip. Down the road a piece in an old field skirting the highway lay the bodies of several Yanks and in the sacks the boys had were the dead Yanks' shoes and other effects. It was sure death to go past the scene of execution. The boys passed the word and when a good wild place was reached, one hollowered: "There goes a rabbit," and dashed off down a gully; the rest lit out, too, some up and some down the road, yelling and shooting and the Yanks sat on their horses quietly laughing till the whole kit and kaboodle had disappeared out of sight and hearing.

Jones had finally to leave for the west and Simpson did, too.

One night it is said the Yankees flushed young Simpson near the old Red Horse place and in spite of the fleetness of the good horse he often rode they got him penned into a pocket with no other way to escape but to make a mad rush for the Seneca River—the road or ferry he found guarded and there was nothing to do but take to the railroad trestle. The bridge was then covered with tin and an old darkey once tried to point out to our boyish gaze the very hoof tracks denting the perilous structure where the black mare had literally skimmed to safety with her reckless rider on her back.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH

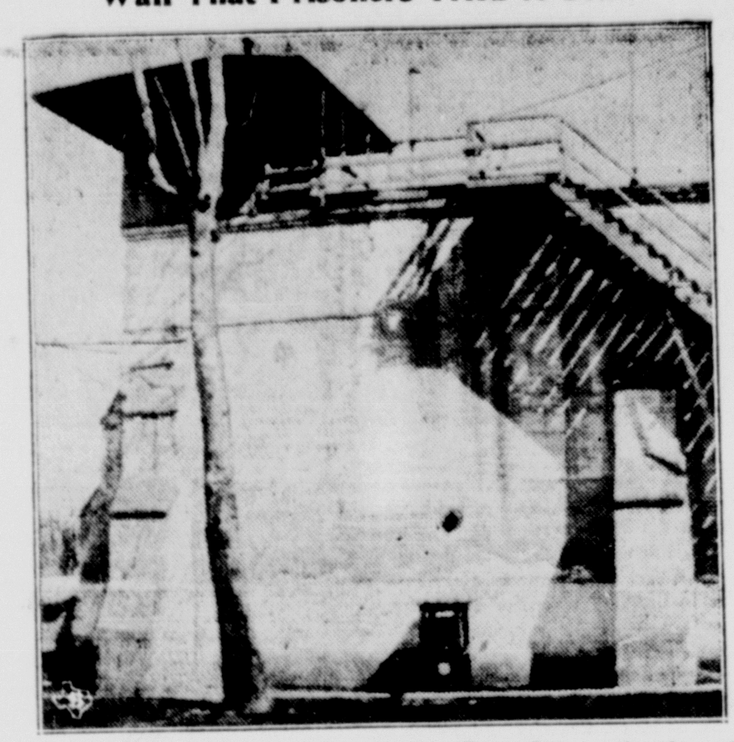
Wall That Prisoners Tried to Scale



Here is a part of the wall around the Texas State penitentiary at Huntsville, over which five convicts attempted to escape. Three were shot by alert guards in the attempted break. Some idea of the height of the wall can be obtained from the steps leading up to the blockhouse (which are on the outside). The prison is known in the underworld as "The Walls" because of the size and thickness of the walls surrounding it, and to distinguish it from the prison farms, which are not walled in.

PARENT-TEACHER

Cameron Parent-Teacher Association held its regular meeting last Thursday.

The business session included a discussion of plans for attending the annual district meeting in Belton March 27 and 28, when eminent speakers will give great impetus to the Child Welfare Work of Parent-Teacher units.

Another event of great interest locally, will be the coming of Mrs. E. H. Becker, District Vice President, for our meeting of April 12 in Cameron.

105-Year-Old Negro Man, Slave Before Civil War, Is Dead

Uncle Dan Rolan, colored, 105 years old and a slave before the Civil War, died Tuesday in the home of George Beal, colored, in the northwest part of town.

Uncle Dan was a well known character about town, and was probably the oldest person in Milam county. His exact age is not certain, and has been variously stated at from 105 to 120 years. It seems quite safe to say however, that he was well over 100.

Will McLeod, who knew the old fellow well, states that as a slave he belonged to the Catchings family who brought him to Milam county. Catchings sold him to McLeod's stepgrandfather, Mr. Reiddens, who took him to Grimes county, where he was freed after the war.

Uncle Dan came to Rockdale about ten years ago to make his home with George Beal. He was a great uncle of George and Willis Beal.—Rockdale Reporter.
